REAL NAME™

I was looking for a tabletop tripod for my DSLR but everything out there was just too flimsy. I needed something small, lightweight, and sturdy so I could carry it in my camera bag. So far I'm pleased with what this weird looking thing can do.

Pros:

1. Very light but strong enough to hold up my DSLR. (struggles with a heavier lens, but can be positioned to compensate for weight)
2. Stable when set up properly. (Easily positioned)
3. Easily attached to random objects to take pictures.
4. Price
5. Works as a standard tabletop tripod for any travel night shots.
6. Stays still for long exposures.

Cons:

1. Non-adjustable height.
2. Head rotation ability is not great if you want to take a vertical picture.

Overall, I suggest this for someone who is traveling and doesn't want to take a tripod (even the travel size ones). This is easily set up on any table and can easily fit in your camera bag or backpack. A tripod is a necessity for night exposures so this is a great investment if you're looking for something that won't break the bank. On the otherhand, if not traveling, then I suggest buying a proper travel tripod.
